

This file is here so we have something to run hash tests against for comparison, knowing the hash of this file from a separate source to make sure that the string is consistently being output correctly and pick up any code changes in the hash parts of Hornet.IO that might affect its output. I think it's unlikely, but you never know!